The dry whey market was very different this week compared to last. Last week the market was active and contacts reported plenty of demand. This week, the market was quiet with very few reported sales. The price range for whey did not change this week. Sales are falling well within the published range for the East region. The CME prices for dry whey have dropped some this week but are holding steady compared to last week's average. International demand for whey is holding steady. Southeast Asian countries are still interested in various dairy powder products. Cheese production remains strong, keeping whey available for drying. Inventory levels of dry whey are steady. Producers can keep up with demand.

Prices for: Eastern U.S., All First Sales, F.O.B., Extra Grade & Grade A, , Conventional, and Edible Dry Whey

Price Range - Non-Hygroscopic; $/LB:	.4900 - .5900
